At one time, the inhabitants of these isolated hamlets at 1450 metres only came across a few shepherds from time to time, without thinking that one day Méribel would become one of the most famous resorts in the Alps. On the roofs of Europe, in the 3 valleys ski area, the Chalet is a true allegory of this village, a post-modern architectural creation that has retained its Savoyard soul. Ideally located, the chalet has almost direct access to the slopes with the possibility of returning from a day on skis. On their return, guests can enjoy the privilege of sunbathing in complete privacy on the property's terrace-solarium. Spread over four levels served by a lift, the interior living spaces of the residence all share the same sense of detail, which is in every corner, pushed to its paroxysm. This is particularly evident in the large living room: built around a majestic central fireplace, the layout of the room is punctuated with ethnic, cubist and industrial touches. This eclectic aesthete spirit continues in the home cinema or in the spa set up two levels below, in a hushed and authentic atmosphere marked by the presence of a splendid solid bronze jacuzzi. Each of the chalet's six master suites is en-suite and can accommodate up to 16 guests for a luxurious and rejuvenating stay. Intoxicating, soothing and invigorating, life at the chalet is an experience filled with magnificence. The soul is replenished and enriched with powerful memories that are sure to linger in the hearts of those lucky enough to have been there.
